Opis

The Chicago Manual of Style

Producent: University of Chicago Pr.

Chicago Style Guide to writing, editing, and publishing, now in the 17th edition. This hardcover guidebook with 1144 pages provides a comprehensive set of rules and guidelines for manuscript preparation and citation of sources used in research. A must-have for writers, editors, and publishers. This guide covers general writing practices, literary style, language, Arts & Disciplines, and non-fiction. The guide is suitable for university presses and general trade. Published by the University of Chicago Press with an excellent reputation for quality reference materials. This edition is part of the Emergent Village resources for communities of faith series and an essential tool for scholars in linguistics, literature, or English.

The Chicago Manual of Style provides a single-source solution for all the writing, citation, and publication standards of American English. The guide follows two citation styles: Notes and bibliography style (used in literature, history, and the arts) and author-date style (used in sciences and social sciences). This comprehensive guide covers manuscript preparation, punctuation, spelling, grammar, indexing, and much more.
